

Lord only you know where those who we call prodigals are—not just the physical place but in their hearts, their minds and their spirits. None of us can hide from you, and no one is lost that you can not find.

We pray for them. Lord, bring them home—not just to us, not even first to us, but to you. Forgive us if as parents, friends or fellowships we have made it easier for them to leave or harder for them to come back.

Wherever they are and whatever they are doing touch their lives. When they come home give us the spirit of the father not the elder brother.

Lord there are some of us who to the outside world seem never to have left the father's house, but we ourselves know how far we have wandered in spirit. Bring us back also.

When they come back, those that have gone far and those who have wandered near, then teach us Lord that sometimes in your kingdom it is not just another meeting we need - but a party.
